

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A contact combustion-type gas sensor that can maintain its initial sensitivity over a long period of time in the presence of silicon vapor, wherein an induction portion of a gas detecting element 1 contains not less than 30 percent by weight of an oxidation catalyst, and is aged in advance in an environment that contains silicon vapor serving as a poisoning substance.